Here is the statement re: cleanup. Not sure where it is supposed to go. Will have the other stuff to you shortly...Tim

Since the initial 1980 study, cleanup has been recognized as one of the tasks through which the indoor trionizing workers rotated. However, no industrial hygiene samples unique to cleanup were initially available and cleanup was previously given the mean value of the other industrial hygiene measurements (Lockey Master Thesis, 1985). The newly available measurements included samples specified as cleanup and these now form the basis for cleanup exposure estimates.
